Distance Education Student - Code of Conduct

UW-Stout students are expected to conduct themselves in a manner associated with the standards of the Code of Conduct. Student responsibilities to this Code are outlined below. Conduct that infringes on the quality of the educational experience of others (student misconduct) is not acceptable and may result in your removal from the course or program.

Students are expected to:

1. Conduct activities according to high ethical principles. These include, but are by no means limited to, honesty, trustworthiness, and an intrinsic respect for the individual. Integrity must be ingrained and supported throughout your course and (or) program.

2. Operate in a non-discriminatory manner, practicing the principles of equality, tolerance, respect, and equal justice with instructors and peers. This principle precludes favoritism or discrimination on the basis of race, gender, religion, age, disability, or national origin.

3. Respect intellectual property rights including those of content providers, instructors, staff, and peers.

4. Respect privacy rights. The student shall safeguard the privacy and integrity of personal data of his or her instructor and peers.

5. Comply with the applicable legal and administrative requirements of the University.

6. Interact with my classmates and my instructors in a timely, professional, and responsible manner.

7. Adhere to individual course (or instructor) policies and procedures as outlined in the individual course syllabus.

8. Accept responsibility to do one’s own work; when involved in collaborative (team) work, to accept responsibilities associated with collaborative (team) learning.

9. Abide by all rules and regulations published by the University and agree to be subject to disciplinary actions outlined in the Student Rights and Responsibilities.
