MENOMONIE — Tax cuts enacted by former President George W. Bush are the topic of the first public forum to be sponsored by a newly formed group, Community Forum, at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Community Room of the Menomonie Public Library, 600 Wolske Bay Road.

The tax cuts by the Bush administration in 2001 and 2003 are scheduled to expire at the end of December and are currently under debate in the lame-duck session of Congress.

Economist Richard Tyson, chairman of the UW-Stout economics department, will speak about the topic. The forum will be followed by a question-and-answer session.
