Power outage to close UW-Stout

MENOMONIE — UW-Stout will be closed beginning at noon Friday because of a planned electrical shutdown.

The campus will remain officially closed to the public and most employees until 6 p.m. Sunday, although power may be restored to some or all buildings before then.

All buildings on campus will be vacated by noon Friday because power needs to be shut down to allow an electrical substation to be relocated to a new substation near the heating plant at 307 Ninth Ave. E. Some buildings, including Memorial Student Center, will be closed all of Friday.

The relatively small number of students who live in residence halls during the summer will be relocated to Red Cedar Hall, along with housing staff, for the duration of the outage.
